

SLIDING PILLAR RALLY 2012: JUNE 8TH – 11ST

The Cotswolds

This years Sliding Pillar Rally will take place in the U.K. from Friday 8th to Monday 11th June 2012. The area we will be visiting is the north Cotswolds, just north of Cheltenham in the county of Gloucestershire.

The area is famous for its hilly countryside and the local honey coloured stone that most of the regions houses are built from.

Our hotel is the Cotswold Conference Centre which is nestled on the edge of the Cotswold hills, overlooking the Vale of Evesham and the town of Broadway. It specialises in local food and drink and there will be some locally made beers available at the bar. Our accommodation will be in the newly built wing, all rooms have a wonderful view across the vale and are finished to the highest standard.

The programme includes visits to one of England's most famous gardens, Hidcote, owned by the National Trust. A lavender farm, where there are many lavender products for sale. There will be lunches in the village of Lower Slaughter, one of the prettiest in the Cotswolds and a special fish & chip lunch on a steam train ride.

As always the number of rooms are limited, so early entry would be advised to avoid disappointment.
